1:15-1:45 Laughter is my secret weapon: Tales from the Caregiver Frontlines

Claire Richardson is a certified Grief Coach and a former hospice chaplain. She earned her Master's in Pastoral Studies from Seattle University and interned at the first modern day hospice, St. Christopher's in London, England. Recently, Claire was co-creator and producer of THESE BIRDS, a Juneau play based on interviews with community members about living and dying in our town. The 2026 production will go on the road in 2027 to other Southeast communities. While Claire appreciated her university education, her real learning came caring for her husband, Lisle Hebert, who was diagnosed with ALS in 2014. With tremendous community support and hospice care, Lisle was able to die in his Juneau home surrounded by his children. Subsequently, Claire accompanied her mother on her journey with dementia and old age through COVID and up until her death in 2024.
