LEXINGTON

SOCIAL HOUSE

In a foregone era, meals were lingered over and enjoyed. Music would swell, champagne toasts led to an evening of enjoyment, and dining was first and foremost a social event — something to be relished. Enter Lexington, a social house, where fine fare and music is enjoyed in a gregarious setting.

Hollywood and Vine for decades has been a gathering point of cultural identification from around the world. Colors, classes, preferences and art melded seamlessly in this environment. Our new concept of a “social house” brings back this world by combining old textures with contemporary chic. Modern stick figure art and classic-inspired furniture with a modern twist, such as white Carrera marble bars clad in decorative moldings, Queen Anne chairs with five legs and buttoned leather banquettes, combine with brick walls, tin stamped ceilings and exposed rafters. Concrete floors are set off by mosaic tile work that combines old world glamour with new world design.

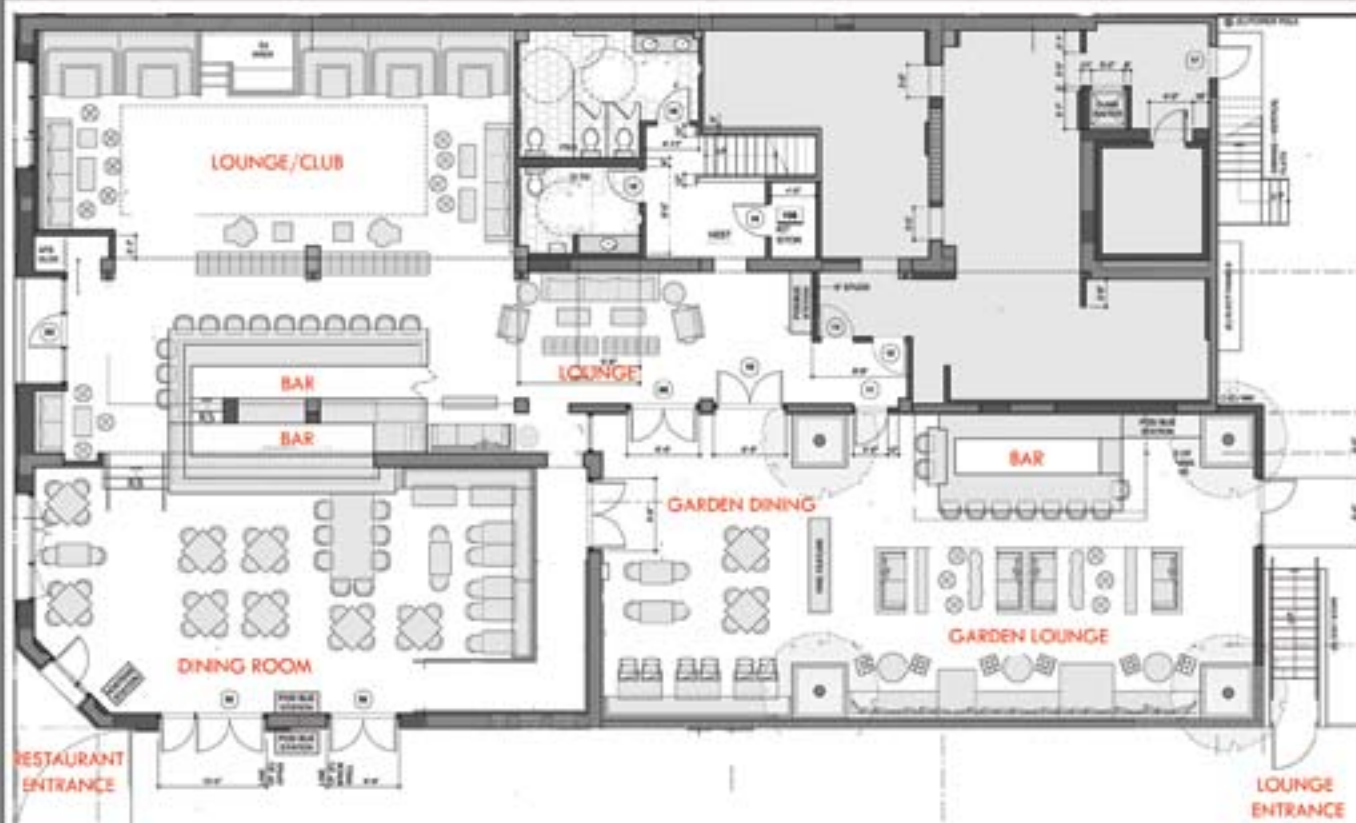

The outdoor courtyard is the true gathering place in this setting. An outdoor room with an interior feel, the cocktail seating, fireplace, open bar, canopies of trees and candlelight all bring to life a new urban feel. It's where you can see and feel the true 'stars' in the sky.

Art was always the focal point of Hollywood. The representation of art in red and black stick figures becomes the backdrop of that philosophy again...People are the art.
