Dr. Sue Ball, ABSNP, C. Psych.
Chief Psychologist, York Region DSB

Imagine classrooms and schools that support positive mental health and well-being for all, where every student and staff feel they belong and they matter. Relationships are built through connection. The schools most effective at promoting resiliency and well-being embed the core principles of well-being, connection, mattering and resilience in everyday practice, through a whole school approach, which extends to parent/guardians and the community. Everybody matters, everybody counts, and every interaction becomes an opportunity to promote well-being.
