

Being a Family Physician in the US Army

As a physician and an officer on the U.S. Army health care team, you will have the opportunity to immerse yourself into a unique culture and environment where your diagnoses and treatments will support the readiness of our military's efforts and improve the lives of Soldiers and their families. As part of our collaborative, multi-disciplinary health care team, you'll enter a comprehensive, international system of care with no concerns about overhead expenses and malpractice insurance. You'll have opportunities to work with some of the most innovative technologies and treatments in the industry and practice at world-class medical facilities that train future Army healthcare leaders, all while developing advanced skills. If you choose to serve in the Army Reserve, you can work in your community, and often do when needed. Whichever you choose, you'll train to become a leader in your specialized field while enjoying the privileges that come with being an officer.
