MISSION

- Asia is the leading region in aviation traffic, accounting for almost one third of the world's revenue passenger kilometres before Covid-19. It was also the fastest growing region before the pandemic and will likely have the same position post-Covid.
- This growth has been driven largely by liberalisation, the growth of the middle class and the limited availability of alternative modes of transport. These factors will continue to drive growth over the next few decades.
- Until a decade ago, airport development was lagging significantly behind the increase in demand. This began to change in the last decade with the announcement and construction of some of the world's largest projects.
- Even though Covid has impacted airport traffic and some of the projects have been delayed, Asia still remains the leader in new airport and terminal development. Its projects are not only among the biggest but are also the most advanced and state of the art.
- These projects include the Noida International Airport in India, the New Manila International Airport in the Philippines, the New Jakarta Airport in Indonesia, the Long Thanh International Airport in Vietnam, Changi airport's fifth passenger terminal in Singapore, and Suvarnabhumi airport's expansion in Thailand.
- The region thus still represents the biggest opportunity for airport developers, technology providers, EPC contractors, equipment manufacturers and industry consultants.
- The mission of this conference is to provide an update on airport development in Asia and showcase the leading projects in the region - whether they relate to new airports, new terminals or modernisation. The conference will also highlight the best practices and emerging technologies in airport planning, design and construction.

ABOUT THE ORGANISERS

The conference is being organised by Southeast Asia Infrastructure and Indian Infrastructure magazines.

Southeast Asia Infrastructure magazine (www.southeastasiainfra.com) is a leading source of information on infrastructure development in Southeast Asia. It tracks key developments, analyses emerging trends, features industry players and perspectives, highlights key initiatives, and profiles exemplary projects.

Indian Infrastructure magazine (www.indianinfrastructure.com) is targeted at the very top decision-makers and financial managers in the infrastructure sectors. The sectors covered include power, telecom, roads & bridges, construction, oil & gas, ports & shipping, aviation, railways, urban infrastructure and infrastructure finance. The magazine provides news, information and analysis of the latest developments related to policy, projects and investments in these sectors in India. It is published monthly.

Our group organises over 80 conferences every year in Singapore, the US, India, the Netherlands, Belgium, UAE and South Africa, including annual conferences on roads, ports, urban mass transit, tunneling, bridges, airports, utility infrastructure, power transmission, and water and waste management. The group also publishes seven magazines, 50+ research reports annually, a dozen weekly newsletters and 8-10 yearbooks/directories in the areas of roads & bridges, ports, airports, railways, urban mass transit, power, oil & gas, water & waste management, telecommunications, mining, construction, smart cities and infrastructure finance.
