CENTER FOR ENERGY LAW & POLICY

About the Center

The Center for Energy Law and Policy provides a neutral forum for analysis, discussion, and debate of the most pressing energy issues facing Virginia, the United States, and the world.

Energy issues affect every aspect of modern life. The Center brings together leading experts and policy-makers from business, non-profits, and government in the energy field to discuss and debate these issues, many of which are highly controversial. The Center's goal is to ensure that different points of view are allowed to compete in a marketplace of ideas in the consideration of pressing energy policy challenges.

The Center will also focus on hands-on learning opportunities by encouraging students to pursue research papers, policy papers, and internships.

Future of Energy Conference

The Future of Energy conference is the Center's flagship annual event. Last year's inaugural conference sold out, drawing more than 200 energy regulators, utility executives, in-house counsel, and law firm partners.

To accommodate this rapid growth, the 2027 conference is moving to the Williamsburg Lodge, where a room block will also be available to registrants at discounted rates, allowing everyone to be just steps from every session, panel, and the networking opportunities in between.

Speaker and Sponsor Reception and Dinner

The Conference kicks off on Tuesday, May 25, with an invitation-only VIP reception and dinner. Sponsors at the appropriate level and above will join the Center's board members, law school leadership, and keynote speakers at the reception and dinner.
