Dear Colleague:

Now in its 8th year, this one-of-a-kind program will focus on resiliency and adaptability, and how we can thrive even during this time of critical demand for water.

Join Tribes, attorneys, government leaders, academia, and environmental specialists to discuss, debate, network, and learn.

You will once again hear from the top players in the field of Tribal Water Law on these hot topics:

- Litigation and Legislation Update
- Indian Water Rights, Tribal Water Law, and the Potential for Redemption
- Federal Update
- Moving Indian Water Settlements Through Congress
- Lower Basin Drought Contingency Plan
- Tribal/State Collaboration
- Indian Water Rights: Truths & Myths
- Ethical Case Studies on Water Use, Storage, and Diversion in Indian Country
- Tribal Nonpoint Source Management and Wetlands Programs, and the Use of the State Revolving Fund Program
- Maintaining a Tribal Homeland in the Modern Era
- Flexibility and the CSKT Compact
- Tribal Water Marketing Agreement in the Colorado River Basin
- The Adjudication of the Coeur d’Alene Tribe’s Water Rights
- The Hoopa Valley Case
- Yurok Tribe v. Bureau of Reclamation

If you are in any way involved with Tribal water issues, this is the one conference you don’t want to miss.

We look forward to seeing you in Scottsdale!

Sincerely,

Stephen H. Greetham serves as Chief General Counsel to the Chickasaw Nation Division of Commerce and as the Nation’s Special Counsel on water and natural resources, where he works closely with tribal leadership in the management of complex litigation and resource protection and development strategies. Mr. Greetham was formerly a partner in the Nordhaus Law Firm in Albuquerque, where he served as water and general counsel to several American Indian tribes. Mr. Greetham has taught federal Indian tax, gaming, and water law at the University of New Mexico Law School and University of Oklahoma College of Law.

Catherine F. Munson is the Managing Partner of Kilpatrick Townsend & Stockton’s Washington, DC office, and co-leader of the Native American Affairs practice. Ms. Munson has extensive litigation experience, representing tribal clients in complex cases before the Court of Federal Claims, federal district courts, federal appellate courts, the United States Supreme Court, and administrative agencies. Ms. Munson also advises tribal and business entities on a variety of matters including water issues, code drafting, occupational health and safety, tax, sovereign immunity and insurance procurement, and loss prevention.

Monte Mills is an Associate Professor and Co-Director of the Margery Hunter Brown Indian Law Clinic at the Alexander Blewett III School of Law at the University of Montana. He teaches a variety of Indian law courses and works with clinical students on a range of legal matters in the Indian Law Clinic. Prior to joining the faculty, he was the Director of the Legal Department for the Southern Ute Indian Tribe in Colorado, an in-house counsel department that he helped organize and implement in 2005 following completion of a unique two-year in-house attorney training program.
