The urban mobility landscape is undergoing fundamental transformation with the emergence of three distinct game-changers: shared mobility, autonomous modes and micro mobility solutions. Public transport still carries the mass number of commuters and is at the core of this transition. The combination and integration of public transport and the new emerging modes shall embrace innovative and sustainable services to solve future mobility challenges in order to contribute a higher quality of urban life. The Middle East and North Africa (MENA) region provides testing grounds and is leading innovation on many public transport fronts.

With this backdrop, "Building the Future of Mobility" is the theme of the 2020 MENA Transport Congress and Exhibition. From autonomous technologies to smart ticketing, dynamic on-demand services, smart apps the region is all set to embrace the evolution of the public transport sector.

Join us in shaping the future of mobility in MENA region.
