GROWTH, RISKS AND PPORTUNITIES

- As India accelerates its infrastructure development, the scale and diversity of capital requirements are increasing significantly. While public capex continues to support infrastructure creation, the next phase will require much greater mobilisation of private, institutional and international capital.
- India's infrastructure investment requirements are estimated at over Rs 150 trillion over the next five years, with transport, power, urban infrastructure, energy transition and digital infrastructure emerging as major investment areas.
- The financing ecosystem is becoming more diversified. Banks and specialised infrastructure financiers remain central, particularly for construction and greenfield projects. Non-banking financial companies, infrastructure finance companies, multilateral institutions and development finance institutions are also expanding their role. Meanwhile, bonds, external commercial borrowings, blended finance, credit enhancement and other structured financing mechanisms are creating additional sources of long-term capital.
- Capital-market instruments, particularly InvITs, are also gaining importance in recycling capital from operational assets into new infrastructure, with asset monetisation providing an increasingly important source of long-term funding. The National Monetisation Plan 2.0 has a target to unlock Rs 10 trillion through monetization of brownfield assets during financial year 2026 through financial year 2030.
- However, availability of capital alone cannot determine the pace of infrastructure investment. Project bankability, execution readiness, land acquisition, regulatory approvals, counterparty strength, demand and offtake visibility, contractual certainty, and effective risk allocation remain critical to financing decisions.
- Going forward, there is an urgent need to scale up private sector investments. Strengthening public-private partnerships, enhancing municipal bond markets and promoting pooled financing mechanisms will be critical for private capital to scale further. Even long-term institutional investors such as pension funds and insurers remain underexposed to the infrastructure sector, and their participation must be encouraged as vital sources of patient capital.

The mission of this conference is to highlight the key trends and developments in the infrastructure financing sector, discuss sector-specific opportunities and challenges, highlight new and emerging sources of financing, understand the key issues and concerns, and identify new and emerging investment opportunities.

ORGANISERS

The conference is being organised by India Infrastructure Publishing, the leading provider of information on the infrastructure sectors through magazines, newsletters, reports and conferences. It publishes Indian Infrastructure (a magazine devoted to infrastructure policy and finance), as well as PowerLine, Renewable Watch, Smart Utilities, Gujarat Infrastructure and tele.net magazines.

The group also produces a series of reports on the infrastructure sectors, including the Infrastructure Finance and Investment Report, Investment Opportunities in Indian Infrastructure and Private Equity in Infrastructure. It organises almost four dozen conferences in a year.

Its recent conferences in finance have included Infrastructure Finance in India, Bonds Financing in Infrastructure, External Commercial Borrowings, Legal Issues in Infrastructure, Real Estate Investment Trusts and Infrastructure Investment Trusts etc.

The India Infrastructure Forum is a collaborative mechanism for key stakeholders – policy makers, developers, contractors, reguulators, investors and consultants. The Forum offers a platform to highlight key government initiatives and investment opportunities, discuss key issues faced by developers and investors, facilitate partnerships and improve understanding among different stakeholders. The Forum is supported by NITI Aayog, IIFCL, Ministry of Housing and Urban Affairs and Ministry of Shipping, and a number of government organisations/PSUs and private sector organisations.
