Clinical Discussion - CAPSA
*“Eroticized anxieties in a five years old girl”

We are delighted to inform that our event was a success both to outreach psychoanalytical work with the IPA standards as well as to encourage clinical discussions. We had 139 attendees in the morning and 75 in the afternoon. Gianna Williams harbor the candidate from our Society presenting the clinical material and with the wonderful translation, we had a very rich discussion of the case. It was an opportunity to integrate candidates and seniors analysts from different societies from Brazil, Europe and Latin-American countries.

The importance of Infant Observation, Child analysis and working psychoanalytically with autistic spectrum patients was stressed and the whole event opened up the interest in relaunching Child and Adolescence training in our Society. In fact, we are working up a new program in order to integrate seminars so that more candidates could become Child and Adolescence psychoanalysts.

Thank you very much for your support, the English-Portuguese-English translation permitted a rich exchange between an experienced analyst and a candidate and at the same time a very vivid clinical discussion with a great number of participants that enhanced Gianna Williams’s brilliant comments on “Eroticized anxieties in a five years old girl”.
