From time to time, we may restrict access to some parts of our site, or our entire site, to users who have registered with us.

You are responsible for making all arrangements necessary for you to have access to our site including the use of equipment which is compatible with our site. You are also responsible for ensuring that all persons who access our site through your internet connection are aware of these terms, and that they comply with them.

USER NAMES AND PASSWORDS

If you choose, or you are provided with, a user identification code, password or any other piece of information as part of our security procedures (whether as part of a free registration or a paid for subscription), you must treat such information as confidential, and you must not disclose it to any third party.

We have the right to disable any user identification code or password, whether chosen by you or allocated by us, at any time, if in our opinion you have failed to comply with any of the provisions of these terms of use or any applicable subscription agreement.

PAID FOR SUBSCRIPTIONS

Paid for subscriptions may be arranged with individuals or on a firm wide basis with government agencies, companies or law firms (the "Subscriber"). The subscription will cover government or regulatory officials, in house lawyers, lawyers in private practice or equivalent professionals working within any office operated by the Subscriber (including employees, partners or consultants) ("Users"). The subscription period and subscription fee will be set out in the invoice issued to the Subscriber or at the point where online payment is requested.

The subscription will allow access to paid for content (the "Publication").

The Subscriber must only issue user names and passwords to Users and the Publication must not be accessed by individuals who are not government or regulatory officials, in house lawyers, lawyers in private practice or equivalents professionals.

If a User moves organisation that User's right to access the Publication shall terminate.

The subscription will commence when the order is placed and will terminate at the end of the subscription period set out in the invoice. The Subscriber may renew the subscription at the then current fee.

If the Subscriber or the User breaches these conditions of use (including without limitation the licence conditions below) this will entitle us, in addition to any other remedy available, to cancel any and all passwords issued to the Subscriber and to terminate the subscription immediately. In such event no part of the annual fee already paid will be repayable to you.

On termination the Subscriber shall use reasonable endeavours to ensure that all Users delete any part of the Publication copied to any hard disk or other permanent storage device.
